ELKS GIVE FLAGS TO SCOUT CUBS AND PUBLIC SCHOOL

Presentations Are Made At
Hulmeville and Morrisville
On Flag Day

INTERESTING PROGRAMS Exercises at Both Places Are Well Attended by The Public

Two American flags were given to organizations on Saturday, Flag Day, by Bristol Lodge, No. 970, Benevolent & Protective Order of Elks.

It is the annual custom of the Elks to observe Flag Day in some manner befitting the occasion and the flag presentations were chosen for this year's event.

First presentation was made to the Hulmeville Boy Scout Cubs and the second presentation to the William F. Case Public School, Morrisville. Both exercises were attended by a representative delegation of Elks and members of the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion.

At the Morrisville affair there was a short street parade which preceded the exercises. This was participated in by the visiting Elks and Legionnaires and the fire companies, P. O. of A., firemen's auxiliaries and the Willet C. Sanford Post, No. 433, American Legion of Morrisville.

The address of welcome was made by Mayor Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville, who extended cordial greetings to the visitors. Exalted Ruler, John S. Williams, Bristol B. P. O. E., then presided and introduced the orator of the occasion, John Leslie Kilcoyne, Esteem Leading Knight and Assistant District Attorney of Bucks County.

Mr. Kilcoyne in his remarks paid fitting tribute to those patriots who did such valiant service in that section. "We stand upon hallowed ground, here today," he said. "Ground which was made moist by the bleeding feet of the Continentals."

"Liberty was born here," said the speaker. Then calling attention to the Battle of Trenton, Mr. Kilcoyne proceeded to dwell upon the services of Washington who he said was endowed with both sainthood and military genius. He told of the fall of the Continentals upon the Hessians which turned the tide of the war.

"Your own Robert Morris went about in the cold of that winter and gathered together the funds which would bring to fruition the dreams of those other great men."

Then the speaker described how Washington, Morris and Betsy Ross met in the Arch street house, Philadelphia and designed the flag.

"Always love your God and your country and be true to them and you will always be true to those things which are inculcated in that flag and you will always hold high the things for which it stands."

Dr. Ralph M. Fox, president of Morrisville School Board, accepted the flag which was raised to the top of the pole and unfurled by Doron Green, president of Bristol School Board and a member of the Elks.

American Legion medals were presented to Louise Neuman and Fred Margerum of the Morrisville schools for courage, honesty, character and leadership. The presentations were made by Mrs. George W. Kelly, President of Auxiliary to Willet C. Sanford Post, No. 433, American Legion and George W. Duke, Commander Willet C. Sanford, Post No. 433, American Legion, respectively.

Mr. Kilcoyne was also the speaker at the exercises at the Neshaminy M. E. Church, Hulmeville, where a group of Scouts and Cubs and Scoutmaster, Frank Forker, met the Elks as a selection was played by the Scout bugle corps led by William Walton.

In presenting the flag to the Wolf Cub Pack, Mr. Kilcoyne said "You may be happy and proud that you live in this great country. Today Bristol Lodge of Elks is going to present to you that flag which symbolizes patriotism, love of home, and honor. It means more than the red, white and blue bunting. It means your country."

In accepting the flag for the Wolf Pack, Rev. Isaac E. Brooks, rector of Grace Episcopal Church expressed sincere appreciation of the gift and all that it represents.

Later in addressing the boys, Rev. Brooks remarked "Cherish and honor this flag, and attempt all the days of your lives to live up to what it means."

Continuing, the rector told some of the history of the flag, stating that it has never met defeat. "I hope you will always be ready to live for that flag." At the conclusion of the ceremony the cubs and bugle corps conducted a short parade with the new flag of wool bunting, bordered with gold fringe, at the head of the line of march.

Tendered Surprise Party By Group of Her Friends

Miss Caroline Sells, of Mulberry street, a member of this year's graduating class of the J. W. Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School of Philadelphia, was pleasantly surprised on Friday evening, when she returned home from Philadelphia and found a number of her friends awaiting her arrival.

The party was arranged by Miss Florence Peirce. Mrs. Sells prepared a delicious dinner which was served at 7.30 and covers were laid for fourteen guests. The dining room was tastefully decorated with Miss Sells' school colors, blue and white and the table decorations were red, green and gold. A large bouquet of red roses with green fern forming the centerpiece on the table. An enjoyable evening was spent playing cards and dancing. The guests presented Miss Sells with many beautiful gifts in honor of her graduation. Those present were:

Miss Caroline Sells, Miss Florence Peirce, Miss Catherine Sells, Miss Marion Wear, Miss Arabelle Barrett, Miss Elizabeth LeCompte, Miss May Barrett, Miss Margaret Fox, Miss Dorothy Turner, Miss Jeanette Hill, Miss Katharine Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. B. Marsden, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sells, Mrs. Joseph Peirce, Mrs. Nell McIlvaine all of Bristol; Misses Kitty and Anna Riley of Philadelphia.

SILVIO CIOTTI WEDS MISS ANGELINA PEZZULLO

Ceremony Performed in St.
Ann's Church at A Nuptial
Mass Yesterday

RECEPTION IN EVENING

At a nuptial mass solemnized at St. Ann's Church, Dorrance and Pond streets, here, yesterday morning at 10.30 o'clock, Miss Angelina Pezzullo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Pezzullo, 504 Jefferson avenue, was united in marriage to Silvio Ciotti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ciotti, 215 Jefferson avenue.

The officiating member of the clergy was the Rev. Father Isadore Jenne, rector of St. Ann's Church, who was assisted by the Rev. Father Marcellino Locca, assistant rector, of the same.

The edifice was filled with relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The wedding march and other selections upon the organ were played by Miss Frances Tamburella.

The bride, the former Miss Pezzullo, presented a lovely appearance in a gown of white bridal satin, fashioned with a close-fitting bodice, the long skirt of which was formed with a graceful fullness. The gown featured short sleeves, and the trimming of the dress was lace and tulle, the skirt being fashioned almost entirely of the latter. Flowers of self-material were placed at the front of the waist-line. The veil of net lace was made cap-shaped, and trimmed with pearls, rhinestones and orange blossoms. Mrs. Ciotti's slippers were of satin, with trimming at the front of a satin bow and sprigs of lilies-of-the-valley. Her shower bouquet consisted of a variety of white blossoms.

Attending the former Miss Pezzullo as bridesmaid was a cousin of the bride, Miss Fanny Fanini, of 215 Cleveland street. The maid of honor was Miss Antoinette Parisi, of Holmesburg, a cousin of the groom.

The best man was Gene Ciotti, a brother of the groom, who also resides at 215 Jefferson avenue.

Miss Fanini was garbed in orchid, her dress of satin having a skirt long and in the back than at the front. The garment was trimmed with tulle, and at the back of the waist-line was a large satin bow of the orchid shade. The gown was made sleeveless, with a shirred bodice. A Greta Garbo hat of maline was worn by the bridesmaid, while her slippers were of white kid.

Miss Parisi was gowned similar to Miss Fanini, her dress being fashioned upon the same lines. She also wore a Greta Garbo hat the colors of the dress and hat being peach. Miss Parisi also wore white slippers.

The bridesmaid and maid of honor carried bouquets of pink roses and carnations, with showers of small buds, ribbons attached to the bouquets being in colors to match the respective gowns.

At one o'clock a sumptuous dinner was served to about fifty relatives of the couple at the home of the groom. During the evening a reception took place at the Ciotti residence, 200 people attending. An orchestra furnished music for dancing, and special musical selections were given.

The bride attended St. Ann's Parochial School; while Mr. Ciotti studied at the Bristol public schools. The latter is employed by the Bristol Printing Company as a linotype operator.

Mr. and Mrs. Ciotti have been presented with a large number of gifts. They will reside with the groom's parents.

REV. GEORGE E. BOSWELL PREACHES BACCALAUREATE SERMON TO MEMBERS OF HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATING CLASS

Tells Them That "Opportunity" is Most Picturesque Word
In the English Language — In Its Literal Meaning the Word Has A Double Significance, Says Rector

Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James's Episcopal Church, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the Bristol high school graduates at the St. James's edifice yesterday morning.

The sermon in its entirety follows: "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men"—Galatians, 6-10.

One of the most picturesque words of the English language is that very common and frequently used word, opportunity. In its literal meaning the word opportunity has a double significance for it signifies either "something in front of the door" or "outside the harbor."

A study of the word gives one the mental picture of a ship, fully laden, riding at anchor and ready to start upon its unknown voyage, or again it suggests a veiled figure standing at the doorway of one's life, knocking with sharp, swift strokes and then when no immediate answer is forthcoming, passing on into the darkness and refusing to be recalled. That, it seems to me, is what we term opportunity in life and those are the two pictures the word signifies in its literal sense, and surely those are the two pictures that are constantly being reproduced in human experience today.

Again and again there comes to every one countless numbers of opportunities; opportunities, which would perhaps change an individual's life from poverty to real wealth; from loneliness to true joy; from the folly of sin and temporary thrills to the glorious liberty found in worth-while services to others; from gross ignorance to high culture and so on. These opportunities constantly come in life to all, sometimes unexpectedly and knock, and frequently knock again, but because many are too slothful to rise, too indifferent to open the door, the silent figure whose hands were laid den with priceless things, departs into the night of lost opportunities, never to return.

Every one who thinks about life soon realizes that all life is a glorious opportunity. Each new day of life is indeed an open door, challenging us to enter and to use our time and our energy in such a way that not only shall we ourselves be benefited but also all others with whom we come in contact will be helped to better and nobler lives.

A long time ago, I read in a newspaper a stanza of poetry which impressed me because it seemed to express in a vivid way, what human life really was—as you and I experience it. It read:

"There is a high road and a low one
And each must choose the path
Through which his soul will go"
and what a great wealth of teaching those lines contain, for surely there is constantly before every living individ-

BUCKS COUNTY FIREMEN MEET IN CONVENTION

Session Held Saturday Night
At Dublin; Two Judges
Make Addresses

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

DUBLIN, June 16—The total fire loss in Bucks County for the year ending June 14th, is estimated at $471,500, according to fire marshal William L. Stackhouse, of Hulmeville. Mr. Stackhouse submitted his statistical report at the annual meeting of the Bucks County Firemen's Association held here Saturday evening.

The report showed that the various companies in Bucks County answered 214 alarms, 89 of which were for grass and brush fires. Twenty-four dwellings were destroyed, and 56 barns burned, 14 garages, chicken houses and small buildings. Three miscellaneous buildings were consumed by flames. The value of the property in danger is estimated at $2,220,000. The amount of insurance on the property and the contents which were destroyed is given at $265,000.

Two women and one child met death by fire during the year. There were eleven barn fires due to lightning, ten of which were not rodded. The largest fire in the county during the year was that of the Model Ship Company, Perkasie, where the loss was $43,000. Sixty-seven pumping engines were used at 241 fires, and chemical engines were in use at 67 fires.

A new fire station was built at Cornwells Heights during the year, costing $14,000, and new apparatus was installed at Silverdale, Newtown and Croydon.

The visitors were welcomed on behalf of the Borough by George Stout, president of Dublin Chamber of Commerce, President James E. Groom, Yardley, presided over the session.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

President, James E. Groom, Yardley; vice presidents, Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; Lloyd Crouthamel, Dublin; Raymond Strunk, Quakertown; secretary, William K. Krout, Perkasie; treasurer, Louis C. Leedom, Yardley; financial secretary, William Stauffer, Sellersville; trustees, William Hamilton, New Hope; Winfield S. Cox, Morrisville; Clinton Rufe, Silverdale; chaplain, Samuel B. Moyer, Perkasie; fire marshal, William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville; executive committee: Lewis Schlatter, Langhorne; William Wimmer, Morrisville; David Vorhees, Newtown.

There was considerable time devoted to the discussion of fire police and their powers in both boroughs and townships.

Fire marshal Stackhouse's report showed that there were 61 fires in the past three months which caused a loss of $123,000. The insurance amounted to $62,000 and the value of the property at risk is estimated at $390,000. One death occurred due to fire in the past three months.

The fire which destroyed two bungalows on Haycock Mountain was another topic talked over by the firemen. These properties were owned by Raymond Scriber, Philadelphia and Alexander Bourse, of Lansdale. They adjoined and their destruction has been a cause of much speculation.

Addresses were made during the evening by Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; Judge Hiram Keller, Bucks County; Judge Harold G. Knight, Montgomery County.

Children Give Program At Hulmeville Church

HULMEVILLE, June 16—Baskets of flowers made an attractive setting about the altar of the Methodist Church, here, last evening, when the children of the Sunday School presented recitations and songs for a Children's Day program.

Included in the program were the following: Recitations by Franklin Readler, Merl Schoenfeld, "Billy" Campbell; vocal solo, Betty Webster; singing by a class of girls; exercise, "Invitation Cards," or "Come to Sunday School," group of girls; recitations by Robert Corrigan and Carl Rickerson; song by junior trio composed of "Buddy" Halk, "Bobby" McCarthy, and Earl Dougherty; recitations, Florence Fry and Ethel May Wheeler, rose drill; recitation, Margaret Claus.

Exercise, "Happy Children's Day," recitation, Richard Bradley; vocal solo, Theron Foster; exercise, "God's Party," song by primary department; recitations by Harriet Bunting and George Frantz; song, Anna and Earle Dougherty; recitation "How It's Done," Helen Woolman and Grace Everitt; exercise, class of boys; exercise, "Verses in the Kitchen"; song by trio composed of Sidney Buckman, Kimbal Faust, and Edwin Webster; recitations by Lewis Brunner and Albert Tomlinson.

False Fire Alarm Fiend Again Active in Bristol

A false fire alarm fiend is again at large in Bristol, and Sunday morning two false calls were sounded and sent firemen of the Consolidated Department on the run only to find that their services were not needed.

The first call was sent in from box 31, back of the Harriman Hospital, at 12.15 o'clock Sunday morning.

The second call was from box 48, Corona Leather Works, at 2.30 o'clock Sunday morning. The individual who sent in this alarm put the entire alarm system out of order.

Two alarms were also answered by the firemen yesterday when fire started in the lumber yard of William Stackhouse, along the Railroad and Trenton avenue.

FOX-McILVAINE NUPTIAL MASS CELEBRATED HERE

Edward J. Fox Takes Miss
Theresa H. McIlvaine
As His Bride

MOTOR TO CANADA

One of the most attractive weddings of the season was solemnized this morning at nine o'clock in St. Mark's Church, when Miss Theresa Helena McIlvaine, daughter of Mrs. Mary C. McIlvaine of 809 Radcliffe street, became the bride of Edward J. Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Fox, of 323 Radcliffe street.

The ceremony was performed with a nuptial mass, and Father Burns, assistant pastor of the parish officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Regina I. McIlvaine, as bridesmaid, while James Fox, a brother of the groom, was best man.

Edward McIlvaine, brother of the bride and Joseph Fox, Jr., brother of the groom were ushers.

Miss Kathryn Keating presided at the organ. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin wedding march. During the ceremony, Percy Ford sang "Because God Made You Mine," and during the offertory, Mrs. E. M. Keating, sang, "Mildreds Ave Maria." The happy couple left the church as Mendelssohn's wedding march pealed forth.

The bride was gowned in a dainty model of white taffeta. The bodice was made with a round neck which ended in a cape and was trimmed with bands of tulle, and had also long tight sleeves. The skirt was a long bouffant model, and was also trimmed with bands of tulle. Her veil was of tulle, while the headpiece was a close fitting cap of Duchess lace. With this, she carried valley lilies.

Miss Regina McIlvaine, the bridesmaid, wore a stunning costume of Helen pink chiffon, made with a close fitting bodice, having a double cape over each arm, forming the sleeves. The skirt was long and ended in points. A huge bow of turquoise satin was worn at the left front. With this Miss McIlvaine wore a picture hat of pink horsehair, lined with beige colored lace, and having a pink satin bow on the side, also slippers to correspond with the costume.

Following the ceremony a reception and breakfast was tendered the bridal party at the home of the bride's mother. Covers were laid for fifty.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox later left for a motor trip to New York and Canada. Mrs. Fox traveled in a dark blue silk ensemble with close fitting hat and also slippers to match.

Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Fox will reside in Salem, N. J.

JAMES SWEENEY SUSTAINS INTERNAL INJURIES; GASOLINE TANK EXPLODES

Blow-Out, Occurring as Automobile Crosses Trolley Track, Blamed for Accident — Machine Strikes Tree and Catches Fire

Three men were seriously injured when the automobile in which they were riding caught fire after striking a tree, due to a tire blowing out. The automobile was destroyed.

The injured:
James Sweeney, Buckley street, three broken ribs and numerous internal injuries;

Maurice Wade, Pine street, two ribs broken;
Eugene Highland, Walnut street, cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred at 12.50 this morning in front of St. Mark's Church, Radcliffe street. The three men were returning to Bristol in Sweeney's car. A tire on the machine blew out as the automobile crossed the trolley track where the tracks swing into the center of the highway on Radcliffe street just above Adams Hollow bridge. The blowing out of the tire threw the car out of the control of the driver, and it swerved to the left hand side of the road, striking a large maple tree a glancing blow. The gasoline tank was ripped off and dragged along the highway. The escaping gasoline immediately took fire and exploded, igniting the car. A fire alarm was sounded and the Bristol Consolidated Department responded.

The three injured men were rushed to the Harriman Hospital where they are still under observation.

Attractive Wedding In St. Ann's Church Here

St. Ann's Church, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, when Miss Jennie Belmont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Belmont of 351 Washington street, was married to Angelo Basilio of Trenton. The wedding march was played by Miss Frances Tamburella of Dorrance street.

Miss Dora Bellel of 347 Washington street, niece of the groom, attended Miss Belmont as maid of honor and Miss Rosa Belmont, sister of the bride was bridesmaid. Anna Belmont, another sister of the bride, was flower girl and the ring bearer was Samuel Spadatore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Spadatore of 343 Washington street. The best man was Samuel Sedula of Trenton.

The bride wore a white satin dress, the bodice of which was tight fitting with shirring in the front and back, V shape neck and sleeveless. The skirt was trimmed with three rows of lace and ended in the uneven hemline, longer in the back than the front. A large flower gracefully hung from the waist line on the left side. She wore a tulle veil, edged with lace, which was cap shape and trimmed with orange blossoms, rhinestones and pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, carnations and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Bellel, was attired in a gown of orchid satin and Miss Belmont, the bridesmaid, looked attractive in a gown of pink satin. Both dresses were made exactly like that worn by the bride and each attendant wore white slippers, and silk stockings, a rhinestone band around their hair and carried bouquets of mixed flowers to blend with their dresses.

The little flower girl wore a blue crepe-de-chine dress made sleeveless with shirring around the neck and sleeves. The skirt was trimmed with two rows of ruffles, made of the material and the hemline was scalloped. She had a string of crystals around her neck, and a rhinestone band around her hair, and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

The ring bearer was attired in a black tuxedo suit, black slippers, white silk socks and carried the wedding ring on a white satin pillow, which was trimmed with satin ribbons.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, following the ceremony. The living room was prettily decorated with pink and white crepe paper streamers. Della's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing. The bride and groom will reside at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sinacori of 213 Lafayette street.

The happy couple were recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. Guests attending the wedding were from Bristol, Newportville, Langhorne, Philadelphia and Trenton.

The bride has been a resident of Bristol all her life and attended the public schools. The groom is employed as a foreman for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

FIRE AT CROYDON

Fire early this morning, damaged the dwelling of Frank Clark, Emilie and Maryland avenues, Croydon. Mr. Clark was not at home at the time that the blaze was discovered. Croydon firemen responded and fought the flames. The loss is put at about $800.

Hi-Jacking Pair Under Heavy Bail for Court

The two men, Edward Cimeno, 19, alias Edward Marcella and Henry Frank, 21, 4759 Melrose street, Frankford, who were arrested in Philadelphia, charged on a warrant with stealing an auto and hi-jacking, have been taken to Doylestown where they are being held in $5,000 bail, each for court, by Justice Edward Lynn.

The pair were arrested on a warrant sworn out on the information of Anthony Russo, Bucks County Detective. The arrest was made by the Philadelphia police.

According to Russo and Chief Jones the men stole the truck of Peter Bono, Dorrance and Wood streets, here last Tuesday morning. Later the truck was found in the possession of two other men and the truck was filled with alcohol. These two men are under arrest in Philadelphia charged with illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

It is said that several trucks have been stolen from Bristol owners recently and later found abandoned on some highway, after, apparently they had served the purpose for which they were stolen.

Mrs. Warren Snyder Gives Luncheon for Miss Fine

Mrs. Warren Snyder, Radcliffe street, entertained friends at her home on Saturday afternoon at luncheon and cards in honor of Miss Mary B. Fine, Wood street, who will be a bride this month.

Luncheon was served at one o'clock and covers were laid for twelve and at each place, was a corsage bouquet of snap dragons and delphinium in favors for the guests. Following the luncheon, the game of "500" was played and favors were awarded to Mrs. Albert Loechner, Mrs. William H. Pearson and Mrs. Harold Lake. During the afternoon, Miss Fine was presented with a gift from the guests. The invited guests were:

Miss Mary B. Fine, Miss May Long, Miss Elva Cruse, Miss Molly Brace, Miss G. Lane, Miss Helen B. Fine, Mrs. Harold Lake, Mrs. William H. Pearson, Mrs. Albert G. Loechner, all of Bristol; Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, of Eddington; Miss Lillian Hall of Torresdale.

TO HOLD INITIATION

The members of Shepherds Delight Lodge, No. 1, Shepherds of Bethlehem, will conduct an initiation of new members at their meeting this evening. The class, which will be comprised of 12 people, is the largest to be taken into the organization, since the drive for new membership started a month ago. A team of active workers from Philadelphia, will have charge of the ceremonies and a delegation from the Trenton lodges will also attend.

SCOUTS TO MEET

The Boy Scouts troop of the Bath Road section will meet at the Laurel Bend school house this evening. The session will be at 7.30, and all boys between 12 and 18 years of age are invited to join the group. Fee for joining is fifty cents, with dues placed at five cents each week.

SCHEDULE CARD PARTY

A card party is scheduled for Wednesday evening of this week, same to take place at the home of the Knights of Columbus, Radcliffe street. A pleasant evening is assured all who attend.

VACATION TIME

Something more than a change of location is necessary if vacationists who are able to take only two weeks from their work each year are to get the best results from the time. There should be as nearly as possible a complete reversal of the activities of the individual during his employment at home.

The surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service says that indoor workers should make as nearly as possible a complete change to outdoors, and that workers in the open will find their greatest recreation in reversing the conditions with which they are familiar in their employment.

The fact is that very few persons are overworked physically, but what they need is a change of environment that will give them the mental relaxation that is necessary if the keenness for their tasks is to be restored in the brief time usually available for vacations. There should be a minimum of suggestion of the job which has been temporarily abandoned.

vacation should be a definite change from vacation, and unless this can be secured to the maximum degree much of the value of the period of relaxation will be sacrificed. The person who can manage to adapt himself promptly to conditions that will produce the desired results may count himself fortunate.

It should not be necessary to suggest to any one the wisdom of carefulness in the matter of eating and drinking when on vacation. That is taken for granted. Mere physical rejuvenation will not be possible at its best unless the mental attitude of the vacationist toward life in general has been quickened by contact with places and individuals.

Well, the June crop of spring brides is being harvested.

No man is bigger than the things required to get his goat.

Another way to make your wife suffer is to grouch and not say what it's about.

"In God we trust" is seen most frequently on money and in the conduct of pedestrians.

Another man that makes work for the coronor is he who "never takes a dare."

This age is so fast it has to reach backward to grasp Time by the forelock.

On the other hand, the man without money is not worried about how to keep it.

Style changes the waist line. If it ever gets around the neck some girls will be strangled.

"What hat do you wear," asks an advertisement. We always make it a point to wear our own.

Even the man who does not hesitate to eat hash at a restaurant may be super-critical at home.

SYNOPSIS

Dawn, mystery girl, is about to be dedicated by the African tribe as the mystic bride of a pagan god, amid weird rites. All night, she is to remain alone in a moonlight-drenched jungle. She, butly whip boss of the natives, means to further his sinister designs there. Dawn and Tom Allen, young plantation owner, are in love with one another. Tom has heard that Dawn is as white as himself. He is resolved to save her from her gloomy fate as virgin bride to the black deity. The British camp has been seized by the Germans. Tom en route to a prison camp, treks through the jungle and gets lost on the very night that Dawn is to be initiated. He must save her, come what may.

INSTALLMENT TEN

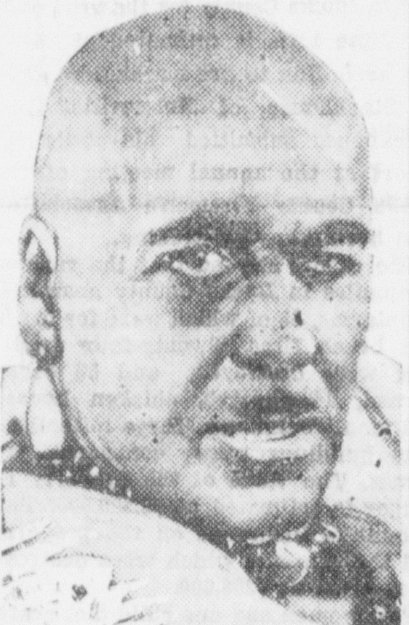

Stepping backward in his flight, Pigeon narrowly escaped falling over the edge of another declivity. "I—I—me, I mean," he stammered. "We was just looking. We got lost."

"Who am we?" Shep inquired.

"Why, me and—me and 'Im, you know."

"This other chap," said Pigeon evasively. Then noting Shep's curiosity turning to fury, he hurriedly amended, "me and Tom. We was going" to the new camp.

Never had Pigeon heard a laugh more expressive of genuine delight than that with which Shep greeted this information. It was several Bully Shep perfected his plans seconds before he could control his mirth sufficiently to speak.

"Where did you leave him?" he demanded.

"Up there somewhere," answered Pigeon, his expansive gesture taking in the entire jungle.

"I want to know where," he persisted.

"It's hard for me to say just where, he's," he began. "You see, I ain't got no map and it's dark in there."

Shep pointed upward whence Pigeon had come. "Must been up there somewhere, ain't it? Dat where you came from."

He'dically Pigeon stalled for time. "We left the canteen," he explained, "and took that new trail that goes up to the camp. We could tell where we was in the moonlight."

"I knows," interrupted the whip man.

"But in the dark, you know, Shep, you ain't able to see. Well, we come to a fork in the trail. There's a small path that goes up hill, and over here the wide one."

"Did you take de wide one?"

"It's like this, Shep—"

Shep, half mad with impatience, struck Pigeon with his open hand, knocking him down. "I wants answers, you vermin, not no long time kill' talk!"

"Honest, Shep," said Pigeon, "I don't know where he is."

"Wherever he is, he's goin' to wait a long while for you," Shep promised ominously.

Pausing, the whip man debated two courses. He had not counted on a meeting with Tom and naturally was resentful of his intrusion into his other plans. He didn't believe Pigeon's story that the two were en route to the new camp. He suspected that Tom was bound for the same destination as his own, probably to kidnap Dawn from the natives.

If that was Tom's plan, Shep decided that his first duty was to frustrate it. Dawn would be chained to the altar and he would be able to visit her at any later time during the night. It also would give him pleasure to report to Dawn that he had disposed of Tom for all time.

He was reminded of Pigeon, who had not yet worked up the courage to rise to his feet. Shep walked over to him, whip in hand. With a quick movement he brought the stock down heavily on the Cockney's skull. Chuckling, he turned and plunged into the underbrush. Pigeon fell forward, rolled over and lay insensible on the trail.

To the wailing strains of the pipe, Mooda led Dawn and her eight bridesmaids into the moonlight clearing. The piper trailed obediently, now playing more softly, but always the same melancholy tune in the same unchanging beat. As the mother of Malungu's bride, Mooda majestically undertook to officiate. She thrilled to the role of high priestess.

At an unspoken word from her, the piper swung into another melody. Rhythmically the new tune was jazz, but its whine issued in funeral march tempo, sending apprehensive shivers through Dawn. Silently the eight girls glided to appointed positions about the clearing. Dawn following Mooda into the center.

The girls danced, a mad, patternless rigadown that, because of its seeming impromptu, was wildly beautiful—and a little frightening. Dawn, too, was required to dance. She found it difficult to lift her feet, so leaden they seemed, but at Mooda's frown she joined heartily in the ceremony. She was not required to throw herself into the ecstatic postures of the maids, since Malungu's bride must never be without dignity. This gave her comfort.

In her loneliness and anxiety for Tom she was unable to concentrate on the ceremony, solemn as it was. She was conscious only of a wish to have it over, to be alone—away from the meddlesome Mooda. She did not fear being alone in the jungle throughout the night. Rather, she welcomed the solitude. Somehow it promised freedom—and she had been without freedom since first she was advised that she was to be sacrificed to the hateful god of her people.

The maids persisted in their crazy caperings until it seemed they must fall exhausted. Dawn shuffled her feet mechanically, her eyes on Mooda, hopeful that she would end the ridiculous gyrations. Soon, at Mooda's silent order, the attendants retired, in groups of four, to either side of the clearing. Dawn remaining where she was. The piper retreated and sat himself cross-legged on the ground.

Mooda joined Dawn. "Mooda know what you think about," the black woman muttered on the pretext of instructing Dawn in the ceremony, "but Mooda say forget. Remember only what Mooda tell you."

Dawn nodded in obedience. "When you're young," Mooda began in awed, measured tones, addressing the moon, "then you lie and you fly to the sky with the man you think is God. Ah, but the man that was God lets you go—and you fall—and you think dat dere's no God at all."

Mooda then began a chant. The piper discarded his reed and began slowly to beat battered cymbals. The girls, with low tread, marched toward Dawn and Mooda as the latter intoned: "Come now, O maids of Malungu, We make Dawn a daughter of the moon."

Sister of the stars and bide of The great god Malungu."

Continuing her doleful anthem, Mooda crossed to where the piper sat. She drew a scarf from about her neck and with it blindfolded him. When she had blindfolded him, the piper struck his cymbals together resoundingly and raised his quavering voice in Malungu Thabus, the song that proclaimed Dawn the daughter of the moon.

The man's words formed for Dawn a death pronouncement. "Malungu, she waits for you" (he sang)

"Who'll tell the maiden what she is to do."

When she becomes Thabu?"

In the words of the chorus, sung by eight maids, Dawn found disheartening warning that to see Tom again would be dangerous. It meant death to both, the song reminded her. Tauntingly, tormentingly, it seemed to Dawn, the attendants sang:

"Malungu Thabu. That mean that you Have given all you lot, to Malungu."

Jealous god above Must have his love A maiden pure and tender as a dove.

When he wants to woo you, woo you, woo you, No man dare be a lover to you, to you.

Be to Malungu forever true, You are eternally Thabu!"

Repeating the hateful chorus, the maids circled about her, removing her outer garments one by one. Next they chained her to the ground. The chains were of sufficient length to permit her to move within a limited area and worked no hardship on her, but it meant that she was to be held prisoner of the moon, next to naked, throughout the night. When morning came she would be there, cleansed by the beams of the moon and worthy of the savage worship of the jungle blacks.

Must Make Reservations For Banquet at Once

The committee which is making the arrangements for the banquet to be given in the high school auditorium on Thursday evening of this week, to this year's graduates of the Bristol public schools by the Fathers' and Mothers' Associations, request all who contemplate attending, to send in their applications for reservations not later than tomorrow, Tuesday, evening.

The banquet gives promise of being a very interesting affair. Several hundred are expected to be in attendance. Speechmaking is to be tabooed, and an entertainment will be given, partly of local talent, with the addition of a few acts of vaudeville from outside. Percy Ford will be the song leader, and at the conclusion of the banquet and entertainment, dancing will be permitted. It is understood that the high school orchestra will play several selections during the evening. Stanford K. Runyon, president of the Fathers' Association, will act as toast-master.

This annual banquet has become a fixture in the school life of the high school students, and the graduates look forward to it with a full amount of pleasure and expectancy each year. It is most unique in character, because Bristol is the only school district in the United States which is known to carry on a proposition like this.

Members of the two associations are urged not to forget that all applications for reservations must be in the hands of Roy Fry, secretary, on or before tomorrow, Tuesday, evening. The price of the banquet will be one dollar per plate, to be paid at the door, on the evening of the banquet.

Harriman M. E. Scouts Hold Interesting Meeting

Troop five, Boy Scouts, held its weekly meeting at the Harriman M.

E. Church, Friday evening, with 18 Scouts and officers, and one visitor in attendance, the latter being Scoutmaster Neill.

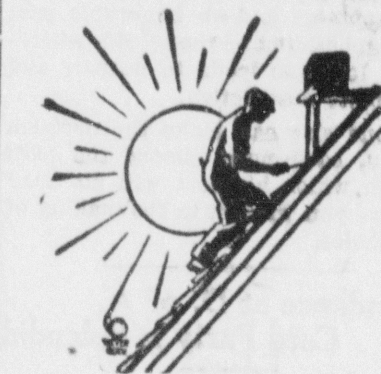

Speeches on Scouting were made by Messrs. Neill, Foell, Talbot and Watson. Boxing bouts by the Scouts were much enjoyed, as was also a candy party conducted by Chris Foell.

ual in the world, a high road and a low one, and each one for himself must choose the one he will travel; and while the two roads run parallel, and it is always possible to go from one to the starting of the other, yet they do not end at the same terminals. In the realm of mathematics that, of course, would be impossible, but in the life it is eternally true.

Let us examine briefly this morning, the two roads of life. The High Road of life is broad and on it we find a number of beautiful well constructed buildings, buildings which remain ever the same with the passing of time. The first building we come to on the High Road of life is the public library. Within its walls are housed the treasures of the minds of the world's greatest scholars; it contains countless numbers of books which everyone, no matter how poor he may be, is privileged to read and to absorb as much as his mind will take in. The library offers to all, mental stimulation.

The next building that attracts our attention on the High Road of life is the public gymnasium. Here one can learn without very much expense the rules of good health; here one can properly exercise his physical body; here clean, healthful sport is taught; here one is fitted to face the physical hardships of life in a manly way.

Going still further along the High Road of Life we come to a group of buildings known as the University. Here one is mentally equipped to face life in a big way; here one partakes of culture; here one associates with great thinkers; here one makes rare and lasting friendships; here one is prepared to take his rightful place in the world and to play his part in the development of the world.

We must go on, for the High Road of life still has other attractive buildings on it—Beyond the university one finds the Art Gallery where again one is lifted from the hum drum of life to the heights of vision by the works of the great artists of the world. Here one can be thrilled by the sculptor and canvases of those whose work ever lives.

Still further on one finds the Temple of Music, where one hears the great operas and the eternal music of Handel and Schubert and Beethoven and all the immortals played and enacted by those of rare talent.

In the very centre of the High Road of Life stands the Christian Church, for the Church is the very center of all that is worthwhile in life. In the church one is taught to worship God, the creator of the world and the giver of all life; in the church too, one learns how to live in this world so as to be sure of life eternal; in the church one learns how to do good to others, the greatest of all life's opportunities.

Such, it seems to me, are the buildings on the High Road of Life, the road which constantly stretches out before everyone.
But there is also a low road of life which also lies before everyone and which often allures travelers. The low road is filled with all sorts of gaudy amusement houses which offer to the passerby cheap and unsatisfying pleasures; Here one finds numerous so-called thrills, numerous devices on which one can spend his money and waste his time. The low road too is filled with roadhouses, from which comes the constant din of jazz orchestras, and which are filled with the odor of cheap perfume and cigarette smoke. Here one finds human beings chloroforming their intellects with strong drink and robbing life of all its sacredness. The low road, although brilliantly illuminated at its entrance becomes very dark and gloomy as one travels along it.

Such then are the two roads of life before which every individual at some time stands and everyone is compelled to choose the path through which his soul will go. The soul, of course, is the eternal part of man, the part that does not die, but which lives forever.

Every sane individual at sometime in life too gives thought to the end of his life. Consciously or unconsciously every individual at some time in his life re-echoes the words of the Psalmist of old when he cried out, "Lord, make me to know mine end." Few there are today who question the fact of a hereafter; a life beyond this one; for there are so many evidences of that fact which cannot be denied, but everyone is anxious to know what the end of his life will be. And the answer to that is obvious for while the two roads of life run parallel through the years of our allotted earthly life, yet the roads lead to entirely different terminals.

There is on the low road of life a stopping place known as the terminal of Denial. That is to say, those who travel the low road come to a time when they become vividly conscious of the fact they have been denying themselves the countless opportunities which have been knocking at the door of their lives and by which they might have become useful citizens; citizens whose lives really counted in the world. They may change over to the High Road but surely lost opportunities can never be regained and always there is that distressing consciousness of what they might have been.

The ultimate terminal of the low road of life, of course, is the terminal of utter despair. No greater tragedy could possibly be enacted anywhere than that which is constantly being enacted in every day life; a great many who have opportunities continually before them whereby they could do much good, yet they waste their lives, they travel the low road, the end of which means despair and destruction.

God be thanked, however, that there is also a high road in life, on which there is a stopping place, the terminal of Hope and blessed hope at that,—to live in this world with Hope eternally undimmed; with continual advancement into realms of worth while; to become more and more useful as the years pass; is the opportunity which lies before all who travel the High Road, the ultimate destination of which is the fulfillment of life's richest possibilities, the satisfaction and the supreme joy of having life here so as to be unashamed and the positive assurance of an eternal destiny.

Life is never easy, few indeed have fame thrust upon them, success of any kind must be sought after and worked for and continually paid for with rigid self denials and with exacting labor; God has entrusted us with a great work, and as we have opportunity we should ever strive to build life out of the best of materials, physically, mentally and morally. To do so we must travel the High Road of life.

And now a word to the graduating Class of 1930 of the Bristol High School. You stand today on the threshold of a golden opportunity—you have completed one stage of your education and ready to start another, and, like the ship suggested by the word opportunity, you are ready to go on a voyage, the destination of which lays solely in your own hands—I wish it were possible for me to impress so fully in your minds, so that they would never be removed, the words, "There is a High Road and a Low one and each must choose his path through which his Soul will go." The High Road, is not perhaps as attractive as the low one, for to travel the High Road means hard work for the remainder of your earthly lives, but the high road leads to fame and fortune and happiness and an honorable past in the upbuilding of the world, whereas the low one leads to despair and to ultimate destruction.

No one else can make the decision for you, each must choose the path through which his soul will go. May God give you wisdom in the making of your choice.

Attendance at D. of A.
Card Party is Splendid

The Daughters of America, No. 58, held a card party in the F. P. A. Hall, Radcliffe street, Friday evening and there was a good attendance. The evening was spent playing pinochle and fourteen tables of players were formed. The prizes awarded to the winners were numerous and useful and the contestants and their scores were as follows:

Mrs. S. Greensmith, 792; Mrs. Lillian Dyer, 783; Mrs. Verna Foster, 770; George Herman, 749; W. Dyer, 739; Robert Hughes, 738; Mrs. Perlin, 731; R. A. Malcolm, 729; E. Peterson, 723; John Brudon, 719; Mrs. A. Hughes, 717; R. Malcolm, 717; Harvey Delrick, 716; George Hoeft, 715; Charles Mummey, 713; Mrs. Stanley Keers, 709; Mrs. J. Nills, 704; Howard Johnson, 695; E. Draber, 686; Mrs. Baldwin, 681; Mrs. E. Doughty, 680; Mrs. Mae Force, 679; L. Helsel, 679; Mrs. M. Taylor, 679; Miss Mary Helsel, 672; Mrs. Roy Ott, 669; Mrs. Carrie Keers, 667; Mrs. Florence Hibbs, 667.

During the evening, refreshments were sold.

HULMEVILLE

Miss Fannie Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Black, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Methodist Hospital, Philadelphia, last week, is reported as doing well.

Members of the Peppy Pals sewing class enjoyed an outing at Willow Grove Park, Saturday afternoon and evening. The group comprised: Misses Marie Hanson, Myrtle Egly, Adeline E. Reetz, Elma E. Haefner, Mrs. C. W. Haefner, Mrs. George Ahlee.

There are 13 in the circle that will present the minstrel show in Henry's Hall Wednesday evening. The group comprises members of the Men's Club of Andalusia Church of the Redeemer. An orchestra will furnish music and the songs and jokes will be of unusual merit. Tickets are now on sale and those who do not attend will miss a rare treat.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Prickett and daughter Mildred and son Leslie, of Hulmeville; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Prickett and son Walter, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Subers and son Jackie Subers, Albertus Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Everhart, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kornstead, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Mullen, and "Billy" Mullen, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Prickett, Clarence Prickett, Mrs. Angus, Miss Helen Angus, Charles Everhart and Mr. and Mrs. William Milnor, Jr., of Bristol, spent a delightful day yesterday upon a picnic at Washington Crossing.

GRAND THEATRE

Filled with mad waggery, riotous fun and delicious nonsense, "The Cuckoos," all-talking musical now playing at the Grand Theatre, is an innovation in sound pictures. Radio Pictures has stepped out into the lead among producers by introducing an all-comedy entertainment at the time audiences are seated with drawing-room dramas, back-stage stories and underworld melodramas.

"The Cuckoos" is not a musical revue. It is a full-length production based on a well-developed plot, with the comedy sequences holding full sway. Gorgeously produced, with hundreds of scenes in Technicolor, "The Cuckoos" stands alone as a brand-new type of screen entertainment. It is an extravaganza of delicious nonsense, starring the mad wags of "Rio Rita" fame, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, and boasting a notable cast of featured players.

Wheeler and Woolsey, who scored sensationally in their first picture, "Rio Rita," carry practically all the action of "The Cuckoos." They frolic madly through the broadest of comedy which is said to be the most amusing of its kind ever brought to pictures. They are assisted materially by Dorothy Lee, also a featured player in "Rio Rita," and Johnny Howland, a new find for pictures.

Romance is not neglected, however, June Clyde and Hugh Trevor provide the heart interest in most capable fashion. Marguerita Padula, who will be remembered as the "Lavinia" of "Hit the Deck," is heard again with her great "blues" voice, and Mitchell Lewis, leading screen "heavy," is the menace.

Bucks County Firemen
Meet In Convention

Judge Keller praised the firemen for the fine work which they are doing and he expressed great surprise at the large number of fires and the loss they caused during the past year.

Judge Knight took "Flag Day" as his topic and also spoke of the fire police in the boroughs and townships. He gave it as his opinion that those who framed the law for fire police in the township, did not give the proper authority to such officers.

It was decided not to parade in Morrisville on July 4th, as had been planned, due to the fact that a large number of the companies thought it better not to leave their communities on that day in an unprotected condition.

The next quarterly meeting will be held in Doylestown in September.

The Women's Auxiliaries met in Red Men's Hall and there were about 120 delegates present. The session was presided over by Mrs. Emma Gehman, Perkasio.

The women chose the following officers:

President, Mrs. Emma Gehman, Perkasio; recording secretary, Mrs. Louis Leedom, Yardley; financial secretary, Mrs. Daisy Strunk, Quakertown; treasurer, Mrs. Frances Stoneback, Quakertown.

Refreshments and a social time were enjoyed on the grounds of the public school.
